

Who's Got Your Back?

We Do

You need someone you can trust, a partner, not just a distributor. You need someone local, a reliable resource who knows your business, who can offer superior service and reliability.

You can trust your local Univar Solutions team to help.

We work to understand your business, and offer a wide array of solutions and options designed to meet your chemical and ingredient needs. When you partner with Univar Solutions, we assign a local account representative and an experienced customer service team that are eager to learn more about your business. Our drivers get to know you as well, they are the face of our private delivery fleet, delivering to you and other customers in your area every day.

And Our Global Network Has Ours

We've grown to be a global business
by building relationships

Here at Univar Solutions, we have longtime relationships with leading suppliers of more than 6,000 chemicals and ingredients. These relationships mean we can supply what our customers need when they need it. We work with our customers in your area to keep tabs on their product needs and ensure that our local warehouses have the necessary chemical and ingredients on hand, removing uncertainty from the supply chain. In many cases, we can help you identify opportunities to bundle multiple chemicals, helping to reduce the cost further.

...and delivering value

And we want to deliver that value for you

Each of our 140 warehouses and distribution centers across North America, including those near you, are equipped with dedicated fleets and drivers who know your company, know your products and know how to safely handle and deliver them to you.

In your local area we have the largest chemical distribution center in the world, enabling us to support your business with:
